NEWS RELEASE

UNIVERSITY OF DAYTON MARCHING BAND WILL PERFORM WITH PRIDE AT SESQUICENTENNIAL CONCERT

DAYTON, Ohio – The University of Dayton marching band has even more reason to perform with pride this season, as UD celebrates its 150th anniversary.

In honor of the sesquicentennial celebration, the Pride of Dayton's student musicians will take the stage in concert at 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 7, inside the Masonic Temple Auditorium at 525 W. Riverview Ave. in Dayton. Tickets are $5 for adults and $2 for senior adults and students, and will be available at the auditorium or in advance by calling the UD band office at (937) 229-3236. Children ages 5 and younger will be admitted free.

The program will feature selections from the band's 1999 pre-game and half-time performances, including pieces by John Philip Sousa, favorites from the 1990s, television cartoon themes, rock 'n' roll and traditional favorites. The Flyerettes color guard and dance line will highlight the program in colorful style.

Pride of Dayton is directed by Linda A. Hartley, an associate professor of music at UD, with assistance by drill designer Willie L. Morris, III, assistant professor of music. Drum majors Angela Anderson and Clint Fisher of Springfield and Barbara Quinterno of New York keep the musicians in time.

For more information, call the UD band office at (937) 229-3236.
